

MUSIC AT MOODY ISLAND

"Camp Sandner" Will Be Opened June 30 With One Hundred Students

Moody Island in Friendship harbor—erstwhile home of Camp Durrell and Camp Wapello—is to blossom anew the coming season with a Summer camp for young musicians known as "Camp Sandner."

With 100 students already enrolled the institution will open June 30, and will have a personnel of 50, the instructors coming from such famous organizations as the New York Philharmonic Society, Boston Symphony Orchestra, Morton Gould's Orchestra, and Andre Kostelanetz' Orchestra.

The age limits of the students are from 13 to 18 years.

Camp Sandner will have a symphony orchestra of its own, and friends and neighbors may look forward with pleasurable anticipation to a series of free concerts during the season.

In charge of the school is Samuel A. Hollander, a New Jersey musician with a highly attractive personality, recently discharged from his three years' duties as assistant to the chief chaplain of the U. S. Navy, stationed in Washington.

He is director of music at the Alfred Vail School of Morris Plains, N. J.

Mr. Hollander arrived from New Jersey yesterday and found awaiting him A. R. Carle of Pleasant Point, Cushing, who is superintendent of maintenance at Moody Island, and for whose energetic handling of affairs Mr. Hollander expressed frank admiration.

As Moody Island has lain dormant since the beginning of the late war much work is to be done before Camp Sandner opens for the season. Twenty log cabins will be built, a baseball ground laid out; also a tennis court.

A. T. Thurston of Rockland has the contract for the electrical work and telephone installation, the latter task requiring the laying of 450 feet of cable.

Moody Island, formerly known as Crotch Island, because of its formation, is a 90-acre tract, splendidly adapted to camp purposes, and a natural game preserve.

Many years ago the late Evangelist Moody bought the island and presented it to the YMCA in memory of his son Durrell for whom the YMCA Summer Camp was named. This camp was suspended when World War I began just as Camp Wapello was suspended when World War II began.

The residents of Friendship are delighted that the island is again to be occupied and look forward to the arrival of the young folks who are to be their musical neighbors.

The Rotary Club weekly bulletin reveals that Dr. Walter M. Spear was president of the club 20 years ago, with the following list of officers: Vice president, Bert Blodgett; secretary, Almon Richardson; treasurer, Homer E. Robinson; directors, Frank S. Rhodes and Bruce Higgs.

R. W. Howell, American Legion Department Commander will be the guest of Winslow-Holbrook-Merritt Post next Tuesday. A supper will be served in the hall at 6:30 by members of the Auxiliary. Commander Howell will discuss the bonus for veterans of World War 2, as now proposed by certain interests.

An Organizer Here

Claim Made That 51 Percent of General Seafoods Shipyard Is Ready

Reginald T. Anderson, Grand Lodge representative for the International Association of Machinists announced last night that, in his opinion, the employees of General Seafoods, Shipyard Division, were about 51% ready for organization of the yard under his association.

He stated that the International Association of Machinists was affiliated with neither the CIO or the A. F. of L.

A mass meeting was held in the Tower Room of the Community Building, which from all observations, was attended by much less than the claimed 51% of the yard workers, but there is a possibility that those who attended were appointed representatives of groups within the yard.

Mr. Anderson stated that the union which he represents does not advocate strikes, but prefers to reach their goal by arbitration. The union includes only hourly wage workers of all trades employed and excludes foremen, supervisors and office personnel.

He stated that his union would ask for higher wages, seniority rights, holidays with pay, vacation with pay, hospitalization, pension plan and insurance, all at the expense of the employer.

Mr. Anderson stated that he would move forward rapidly with the unionizing of the yard. According to the National Labor Relations Board rulings, a secret ballot must be taken, with all qualified employees participating, on whether or not the employees wish any union to represent them in their associations with their employers.

Thomaston Undertakers To Establish a Funeral Service Here June 1st

Mrs. Leah Davis Brooks of the Davis Funeral Home of Thomaston, this morning announced the purchase of the Cobb homestead at 558 Main street, more recently occupied by Dr. Leigh.

She stated that a modern funeral home will be established in the location and will open about June 1. In partnership with her in the venture, which will be known as the Davis Funeral Service, will be her husband, E. Douglas Brooks, and Maurice E. Miller of Rockport, recently returned from military service, and a licensed embalmer.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller will make their residence at the funeral home when completed. Mrs. Miller is the former Vera Easton of Rockport and who served with the Waves in Hawaii during the war.

Mr. and Mrs. Brooks will remain in Thomaston and will operate the Davis Funeral Home as in the past.

The services of the firm will also be extended to Rockport where a funeral home has been established on Pascal Avenue. Mr. Miller will be in charge of that establishment.

Hugh Benner of Rockland, for the past 13 years an employee of the Russell Funeral Home, will be with the firm as an embalmer and funeral director.

The Davis Funeral Service was originally established in 1882 by the late A. D. Davis, in the town of St. George. In 1911, the firm moved to Thomaston and was later known as A. D. Davis & Son, being jointly operated by the late Russell, Davis and his father.

Davis Funeral Service needs no introduction to many families in Rockland and vicinity—and the same fine service rendered by the firm in the Thomaston, St. George and Friendship areas will be extended to Rockland and Rockport.

Mr. Miller is a licensed embalmer of thirteen years experience, as is Mr. Benner. Mrs. Brooks is also a licensed embalmer, having received her license in 1940. All are graduates of the New England Institute of Anatomy, Sanitary Science & Embalming of Boston.

Mr. Brooks, recently discharged from Coast Guard service, is a graduate of Middlebury College, Vt., and was employed prior to the war as a welfare investigator by the State of New York. He will be the business manager of the firm.

City Assessor Richard Thomas is attending the meeting of the Maine Municipal Association in Augusta.

Snohomish To Go

Her Departure Will Leave No Local Coast Guard Rescue Craft

Captain Arthur G. Hall USCG, Chief of Staff of the First Coast Guard District in Boston, admitted by telephone this morning that the cutter Legare had been de-commissioned there following a rescue trip this week when she towed the dragger Texas to that port from a point 168 miles off Matinicus.

He also stated that the combination ice breaker and rescue tug Snohomish, would be de-commissioned in the very near future—leaving this area entirely without craft for the preservation of life and property at sea, with the exception of buoy tenders and small boats.

He stated that there are five of the new type tenders, such as the Cactus, in commission in the district and that they would be turned to rescue work whenever necessary.

While this drastic cut back is not the wish of Coast Guard officials, they are forced to carry it out due to lack of sufficient men to man the ships, according to Captain Hall.

The release of Coast Guardsmen, who are now manning Navy transports, is expected by July and he assures Rockland that as fast as men come back to the service, they will be assigned to ships which are now tied up and the craft will return to their regular duties.

In the meantime, he asks fishermen to take special precautions for their safety, to watch their fuel supplies so that they will not exhaust them at sea, and to keep in touch with one another for assistance when at sea.

The Republican State Convention, largest in its history is in full swing at Bangor as this paper goes to press. There were no contests in the Knox County caucus last night. Frank A. Tirrell of Rockland was named chairman of the meeting.

Elect to the State committee were Alan Bird of Rockland and Mrs. Hattie Lawry of Friendship; vice presidents, Frank A. Tirrell and Mrs. Lela Haskell of Union; resolutions committee, Curtis Payson of Union and Mrs. Ruth Ellingwood of Rockland. Edith Payson of Union was secretary of the caucus.

Mrs. Minnie Page of Warren has my thanks for a copy of the China Tribune published in 1900. The paper carried a quantity of local news and three very interesting animal stories. I also want to thank Mrs. Page for her kind words concerning this department.

And still they come—kind words about The Courier-Gazette's centennial edition. The latest from Isabel B. Bain who writes from St. Petersburg, Fla.—"This edition has been packed to make the return trip to Maine with us, and is being carefully kept for future reference. We think you did a splendid job on it." The Bains, incidentally are home-bound bound for Rockland.

"Crazier than the jitterbug." That's how they describe a new English dance, and it must be crazy, indeed. A photo shows a couple lying side by side beneath an apparatus resembling a highjump cross bar. The couples try to dance under the bar as it is gradually lowered, it was explained. The winners are the boy and girl who "dance" under the bar at its lowest.

It isn't every barber shop where you can get a shower and a shave in the same chair at the same time. But John Watts appears to have solved the problem.

In the Vinahaven historical article which appears on another page the author, Sidney Winslow, tells graphically the story of the famous Herrmann estate and of the rumors to which it gave rise back in World War I. Oldtimers will find the story highly interesting and to the present generation it will serve as a revelation of what this committee was up against in those exciting days. Sidney Winslow's articles are attracting widespread attention.

One year ago: Rockland High School won the state championship in the one-act play contest—Memorial services were being held for the late President Roosevelt.—Pfc. Chesley E. Adams of Thomaston was missing in action.—Among the deaths: Haverhill, Mass., Almond G. Maker, 68; Quincy, Mass., Raymond Haskell, 66 of Deer Isle.

Selection of a county and legislative ticket and preparation of primary papers are the purposes of a meeting of Knox County Democrats to be held in the City Council rooms Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Monday is the last day for filing primary papers. The committee invites service men.

Verre B. Crockett Is Available For Yacht and Commercial Craft Design—Has Fine Training

An interesting addition to the business enterprises of the maritime section of Eastern Maine is the establishment in Rockland of a pleasure and commercial designing service and brokerage business by Verre B. Crockett, a young man with long experience as a naval and marine architect.

Crockett studied naval architecture and yacht design with the Western School of Yacht Design of Montville, N. J., and served as chief draftsman for the Bristol Yacht Building Co. at South Bristol. From there he went as chief draftsman to Colley & Maier, Inc., Naval Architects and Marine Engineers in Boston. In 1945 he went into the Navy, in charge of the drafting room at the U. S. Navy Amphibious Base, Little Creek, Va. In his venture Mr. Crockett is associated with William H. Millett, widely known Naval Architect. He is available for consultation on all problems of design and construction of yachts and commercial craft. He carries stock plans for all types of boats and will appreciate listing of any type boat for sale. He is a dealer for the widely known Rice Mfg. Co. aluminum non-sinkable sailboats and center board units.

Crockett is a native of Rockport, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Crockett, a product of Rockport High School and at present a resident of Rockville.

[EDITORIAL]

SOME STARTLING FOOTWEAR

We may not see the pink elephants, which were advertised in the song of that name, this season, but we are going to see some things almost as strange and they will include red leather shoes for men, according to the New England Shoe and Leather Association. Among the novelties were plastic rainboots and spats. Among the novelties shown in Boston by the Association were plastic rainboots and spats, covert cloth slippers to match a wrinkle-proof costume for plane trips, and rubberized platform shoes. The most whistled at items were the fur evening slippers. In addition to the mink shoes—worn with a mink coat and pink satin-topped slacks—there was a diamond-studded pair of ermine-lined broadtail boots. Worn with a black broadtail dress, the dazzling footwear stopped the show. A teen-age canteen complete with juke box and juke-box was the setting for the display of junior shoe styles, said to be the first line of its kind in the country.

WAR ACTIVITY ENDING AT SEASPORT

The Port of Embarkation—the title bestowed upon Seaport—will be closed next Monday and the event will mark the end of a wartime industry which has existed for several years, and which has given employment to hundreds of Knox County men, incidentally. Seaport has played an important part in the second world war, and much of the ammunition shipped from there helped spell the defeat of the Axis powers. In spite of its commercial value to the community in which it was located we believe there are many persons in and around Seaport who will not regret the passing of the ammunition plant. One has only to think of what might have happened.

IN FOR A BIG SEASON

The State of Maine is looking forward with full confidence to what will probably be the most prosperous Summer resort season in its history. Everybody who can afford it is going to relax, and where better can they do it than in our widely advertised "Vacationland." Under normal conditions it's a one hundred million dollar industry, and if the immense number of inquiries received by the Maine Publicity Bureau is any criterion the receipts will go considerably higher during the present season. Many Summer hotels are booked way ahead, and this is said to include that superb resort known as the Samoset Hotel.

IT WILL BE A BIT CONFUSING

Gov. Hildreth emphasizes that it is up to Maine communities whether they shall have daylight saving this Summer. "I am somewhat concerned," he says, "that people of Maine, having operated on daylight saving time under a federal law for several years, may be thinking that the situation this year will be the same and that considerable confusion will result April 29. The federal law is no longer in effect, and Maine has no State law relating to daylight saving time."

We quote agree with the following editorial which appeared in Wednesday's Press Herald:

The mail indicates that the anti-daylight-saving people are swinging into their stride, with occasional denunciations of the affront to "God's time" that changing the clock will bring. It seems to have no weight with some that we are not on "God's time" anyway, but upon Congress-made time zones. What do the people do who are on the edge of one of these time zones and find that the village or city where they trade is an hour ahead or behind the time of their own farm?

At any rate, Maine has a thoroughly democratic, but quite discouraging system of local option in deciding whether to go standard time or daylight saving. Governor Hildreth was well-advised to warn all communities that decision is in their own hands; for wartime daylight saving may well have led some of them to forget that local option must be exercised. It is possible, besides, that wartime daylight saving for so long a period has somewhat reduced opposition to it; people may have found it more tolerable, and may adopt it generally. From the town-dweller's point of view there could be nothing worse than to have standard time rule in one town and daylight saving in another. Since the "fast" time seems sure to be the choice of the great majority, Maine might be better off if the decision were in the hands of the State Government rather than in those of hundreds of communities.

Herbert Smith Pard Penalty For Being Truthful, He Says

Does it pay to be truthful with the OPA. If you think it does, read this:

By February, 1946, I had sold out my entire supply of cord and fitted wood, all sold within OPA prices. A number asked me to deliver wood as they were completely out. Being out of fuel in February, with Maine temperatures, isn't a pleasant situation, and trying to pick up soft or cordwood at roadside for OPA price of $3 isn't a pleasant task when the following costs are involved: Stumpage, $3; cutting, $5; swamp-logging road, $1; hauling from woods to roadside, $2; total, $11.

I was able to find a party who had 14 cords of mixed pulp and hardwood for sale (OPA price $12.50) at $11 and purchased it to manufacture into firewood for these customers.

Putting this pulpwood into firewood involved $3 extra, so instead of charging OPA $14.50 price for this, I felt justified in charging $17.

This wood was delivered to 13 customers, and they were advised of the price and the reason why. Before I could mail the bills or collect a cent for this wood, the OPA hauled me in and fined me $50.

Where I hadn't sent the bills or collected for any of this wood, I could have lied to them and gotten out of it, but I told the truth and showed them where $17 had to be charged to break even.

They informed me that where this wood was put into firewood I could enter a complaint against the man who sold it to me and get back $35. I told them my eyes were open and I bought the wood and considered it well worth $11, furthermore, I wasn't making a complaint against anyone.

The party who entered the complaint against me on this wood hasn't paid for it to date. I would greatly appreciate it if they would take their reward for making complaint and pay me and in the future purchase their wood elsewhere.

The Salon Prizes

Two Newspaper Men Figured Prominently in the Judges' Awards

A board of judges, composed of Edwin L. Brown, well known artist and penman; Mrs. Elsa West of South Thomaston, recognized as an artist of merit; and John M. Richardson, business manager of The Courier-Gazette, made the award selections at the annual salon exhibit of the Knox County Camera Club Wednesday night.

The exhibit has nearly 200 salon prints which are the work of its own members and the members of three nationally known camera clubs as well as combat photographs from the public relations sections of the Coast Guard, Navy and Marine Corps.

A photograph titled "Fritz," the subject of which was a German Shepherd owned by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Elliot of Thomaston was awarded the grand prize and first general award. The photograph was the work of Sidney Cullen, member of The Courier-Gazette news staff.

The Second General Award was to the same person and was originally taken as a commercial advertising piece for Central Maine Power Company, and was used in their advertisement in the 100th anniversary edition of the paper. It showed a line crew at work on a high voltage line in stormy weather, and was titled, "Hot Stuff."

First award in the portrait class was of former City Clerk Edwin R. Keene and Janet B. Hall and was titled "Story Hour." In the pictorial class, a photograph showing the lobster smack, Silas McLoon, heavily iced up after a trip from Down East and the crew chopping tons of ice from the deck to get the hatch off, as she lay at the McLoon dock. Both were submitted by Mr. Cullen.

William W. Rich of Boston and Glen Cove carried off both awards in the children's class with two excellent photographs; one of a baby and the other of an older boy.

James A. Moore of Glen Cove received second prize in the pictorial section with a print of the winch aboard one of the local fishermen, heavily iced from one of last Winter's storms and titled "Winter Work."

The first prize for work in the visiting exhibits went to V. A. Bovik of the Elmira, N. Y. club for his finely executed print of a sculptor at work.

Second award for the visiting clubs was awarded to O. M. Williams of Bangor for a most excellent photograph of surf-breaking on the beach.

With 17 other major denominations, the Baptists are advancing in a program of restitution and rehabilitation of mission property, three-quarters of which has been destroyed by the war. Coupled with this is advance in evangelism whereby their missionary staff is almost being doubled. North Haven Folks See Passenger and Freight Boat Recently Bought

North Haven's new passenger and freight boat, recently bought from government surplus agencies, arrived in North Haven yesterday. Bringing her from New York were Capt. Neil Burgess, engineer Elmer Carver and Lester Sherer.

She is expected to go to the Billings yard in Stonington, where she was built for the Army, for refitting to suit her for her assigned duties as the town's freight and passenger craft.

Diesel powered, she is 65 feet in length and of heavy construction, having been designed as an Army tug originally and served on that duty in the Philippine area.

It is thought that refitting will take in the neighborhood of one month.

And Returns From the Red Cross Drive Have Not All Been Received

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

Not all of the 16 branches of the Knox County chapter of Red Cross have yet made returns, but the cash deposits on hand already show a generous oversubscription.

March 1, the 1946 Red Cross Fund asked for $10,650. Though not complete, the fund now amounts to $13,500. The chapter office thanks Knox County for efficiently handling of the drive, and for this substantial testimony of confidence.

Complete returns cannot be published until the list is made up by the receipt of considerable sums still expected.

Discussed Traffic

But There Were No Fireworks At The Chamber Of Commerce Meeting

Between 50 and 60 Rockland merchants attended a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce merchants' committee in the Community Building Wednesday morning to protest against certain features of the traffic code and the proposed rotary traffic plan.

The meeting ended, after much discussion, with the group extending a vote of confidence to the City Manager.

Many believed that the meeting was called to formulate plans for combating the rotary traffic plan. However, the meeting resolved itself into a heated discussion of the so-called abuses of the traffic code and its administration. It was evident that the general opinion was that the police were hewing too close to the letter of the law and should use more leniency in issuing traffic tickets for such minor infractions as parking more than the legal distance from the curb.

The police method of warning off of town motorists on the first offense was approved heartily.

The present system was approved, with minor suggested revisions.

Edward C. Moran, chairman of the City Council, appeared, at the request of Mr. Savitt, chairman of the Merchants' Committee, and explained the ordinances whenever necessary. He did make quite clear that the origin of the ordinances rests with the Council and in no case does the City Manager write, introduce, or have any part in passing an ordinance and making it law. He stated, that many had referred to objectionable ordinances as his, which is not true at all. The writing and passing of ordinances rests solely with the council and any blame, or credit, due should be directed to the council, said Mr. Moran.

The latter part of the meeting, the matter of rotary traffic was again brought up. Mr. Moran suggested that Councilman Albert C. McLoon be called before the group to explain it as he is the originator.

A vote was taken as to whether or not it would be discussed then and there or made the reason for a meeting, perhaps next week. The decision to continue the discussion to another meeting was almost unanimous; also to invite Mr. McLoon to appear.

Portland were recent supper guests at Miss Lucreia Pushaw's in South Hope the occasion being Mrs. Pasquel's birthday.

Hear Dr. Lowe Declare We Will Call Russia's Bluff

Happy as they always are when Dr. John Smith Lowe speaks the Lions listened Wednesday to his talk on "International Affairs" and felt that they were closer to the situation.

Dr. Lowe, at the outset, disclaimed any knowledge on the subject. "All I know about it is from sources of information open to all of you. The more I read and hear about it I wonder if I know anything at all, as almost everybody has a different analysis. We do know that no longer are any of us isolationists."

"Fifty years ago if we had heard about trouble breaking out in those distant Asiatic countries it would have attracted only passing notice. Today we not only know about the trouble in Iran, but are getting jittery over it. If war does start there we are going to be in it all over."

"The more interest we take in national affairs the more we understand them and are able to help work them out."

"It is going to be necessary for us to understand Russia and I wonder if anybody thoroughly understands her. I encounter so many authorities asking why Russia doesn't play the game our way."

"Suppose we try to get the truth out of the situation in Iran. Why is Russia in there? Oil. Great Britain was once in almost the same position Russia is today. Under the terms of the Atlantic Charter Russia has a right to desire some of that oil, but the United Nations are not altogether satisfied with the arrangement Russia has entered into with Iran."

Russia wants back certain territory which she lost to Turkey because she wants to use the Dardanelles. That is one of the nuts she wants to crack.

"When Russia backs out of Manchuria it will be a seething hotbed of Communism favorable to Russia. 'The thing for us to do is to put our influence into the United Nations. If we continue to do what we are doing today will call Russia's bluff.'"

Rotary traffic came in for lively discussion during the lunch hour and at the suggestion of a number a straw vote was taken. It showed fully 80 percent of the members opposed to the idea.

John Morin, jeweler, was admitted to membership. Albert MacPhail and Douglas Cooper were guests.

No door-to-door solicitation will be made in Rockport, but it is hoped that Rockport residents wishing to contribute to the drive will mail gifts direct to Miss Bowers, or leave with Arthur K. Walker, first selectman, Rockport.

Gifts may also be left at either of the Camden banks, the Knox County Trust Company, or the Camden National Bank, for the hospital drive, Miss Bowers said.

Additional unsolicited gifts made before the drive opened and which were not reported last week have come from Henry Frankenberg, Camden Textile Corp., J. Riker Proctor, and Ralph Wilson.

A well attended meeting of the solicitors with hospital President Avery Matheson was held at the Camden "Y." Among the points explained by Mr. Matheson at the meeting were the need for raising these funds. Also it was explained that in the past there has been an impression that "memberships" were to be solicited for the hospital, but this is not the case, memberships not being provided for in the by-laws. Any person contributing to the hospital, no matter what the size of the contribution, is entitled to attend and vote at the annual meeting of the hospital, Mr. Matheson said, and all contributions, large or small will be gratefully received.

Found Dead In Room
Coastguardsman Had Been Reported Ill In Local Establishment

A Seaman, second class, age estimated to be about 19, and attached to a Coast Guard Construction Detachment temporarily assigned in this area, was found dead in his room at a local rooming-house last night.

Yesterday morning, he is reported to have been ill and did not accompany the rest of the crew, who were living at the same house, to a construction job at Brown's Head Light. Upon returning about 5:30 yesterday afternoon, they knocked on his door and received no response. Calling the owner of the house, they had the door unlocked and found that he was dead.

A call was placed for Dr. Charles D. North, Knox County Medical examiner, who had the body removed to the Russell Funeral Home. His decision as to cause of death had not been given at press time this morning.

The man's name is being withheld by Coast Guard officials until his family, believed to be in the New York City area, can be notified.

Honors Made Easy
"Excuse me," apologized the editor with The Largest Circulation in The World, who had stumbled up a strange, dim stairway and put his head in at the editorial room of the rival paper; "this is not the place, I perceive. I was looking for an intelligence office."

"Rights across the way!" yelled the editor of the rival sheet, as the unwelcome visitor withdrew. And it was so that when the Great Journalist had crossed the dingy corridor he found himself within the parlors of the local tonorial artist.

He Was A Married Man
"Death to all forms of social order!" shouted the long-whiskered anarchist, gesticulating wildly into the air; "death to capital, death to the police, death to the plutocracy, death to the home—!" The janitor of the hall advanced to the front of the stage and hoarsely whispered: "There's a little woman with a red face out in the entry and she says if you are coming home tonight, now is the time to do it."

Paul York Drowned
Skiff Sank Beneath Him While He Was Searching For His Own Boat

Paul York, 24, of Spruce Head, was drowned this morning about 2 o'clock off Spruce Head Island.

Chief Boatwain Mate M. C. Minzy of the Whitehead Lifeboat Station reports that York's skiff had gone adrift and that he had borrowed another to go in search of his. The skiff is reported to have sunk and York drowned while trying to swim ashore. Minzy gave the location of the incident as being between the Western side of the Spruce Head bridge and Rockcliffe Island.

York was discharged from the Coast Guard Oct. 12, 1945, following nearly two years duty in the Pacific and a total of nearly six years Coast Guard duty. An unidentified fisherman had taken him from the water before the Coast Guard boat arrived. The crew promptly gave artificial respiration; which was a short time later taken over by the emergency crew of the Rockland Fire Department comprised of Driver Phillips and Capt. Gray, together with Sergeant Breen of the Police Department.

Dr. Charles D. North, Knox County Medical Examiner, declared death due to accidental drowning.

ROBERTS-SYLVESTER

Much local interest centered about the wedding of the popular Rockland couple Dorothy C. Sylvester and Milton E. Roberts, performed Sunday afternoon in the First Baptist Church and witnessed by about 300 guests. Baskets of jonquils and pussy willows with seven-branch candelabra made effective decorations.

Attending the wedding party were the two children—Miss Carol Cross, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cross, as flower girl, dressed in a gown of blue taffeta with matching hat, and carrying a white basket of Spring flowers; and Billy Emery, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Emery in a dark blue velvet suit, carrying the rings on a white satin pillow.

At the reception following the ceremony, Mrs. James W. Emery, gowned in brown lace with corsage of pink carnations, and Mrs. Edward Cross, in a dress of printed rayon jersey with corsage of tea roses, assisted the young couple in receiving the guests, members of the immediate families and near friends.

A beautifully decorated, three-tiered, wedding cake, (made by Mrs. Nora Stickney) centered the bride's table it was flanked on either side by white tapers in 3-branch silver candlesticks.

The bride and groom cut the first slice of the cake after which Mrs. Thomas Anderson, assisted by Mrs. Edward Cross, aunts of the groom, served the company, Mrs. Carl Hutton dipping the punch.

Miss Cynthia Tibbets was in charge of the guest book and Mrs. Harriet Emery the gifts. The couple was remembered with many lovely and useful gifts. The bride's bouquet was caught by Miss Arlene Cross, and the couple made a quick getaway, in spite of the efforts on the part of the young people to delay them.

After a brief honeymoon they will reside in an apartment on Pacific street, until Fall when Mr. Roberts will resume his studies at Northeastern University, Boston.

Ruth Mayhew Tent meets Monday night. Regular supper will be omitted.

Lt. John J. McInnis has returned to Eagle Rock, Va., from a brief visit with his aunts, at his Masonic street home.

Mrs. Dorothy Jipson was hostess to members of the Odds and Ends Club at her home last night.

The Dignity Of Death

From the day of birth, whether life be long or short, it is always overshadowed by the imminence of death.

March 25, I left Portland for Lewiston at 7:45 a. m. on time. It was raining lightly. The train run is usually an hour, but death stopped it. Opposite the American Can Company factory, the train stopped. A woman driving her car had been struck by a West bound, double header freight of 92 loaded cars. She had driven her car down Read street and left her daughter at the factory; turned her car around and was on her way home. She crossed the first track but on the second, crashed head into the West bound special. She had a split second recognition of her peril, as dictated by her acceleration of her car. Death was instantaneous.

The sedan, with her in it, was dragged 900 feet. So rigid was the chassis that during that long drag, it kept her from being thrown under the great driving wheels of those two Mogul engines. A trainman urged me to go and see the dignity of death. Her dress was undisturbed; her hat lay beside her. Her left arm rested lightly on her side. Her face was toward the cruel wheels, but she was dead. She looked as if she had just turned onto her right side and gone quietly to sleep, as indeed she had—forever.

The dignity of death was here. The train was detained two hours.

"He giveth His beloved, sleep," William A. Holman.

AN EVENING PRAYER

When sun has set, the day's work done,
Lord hear my evening prayer;
Safeguard and bring me through the night
With Thy Protecting Care.
Grant unto me refreshing sleep,
Sweet dreams and peaceful rest;
And may I wake with song and joy,
Strengthened in Thee and blest.
And with the new day help me Lord,
To know and do Thy will;
Sustained and led of Thee, may I
Thy purposes fulfill.
So let me live from day to day,
In all that I should be;
Until I reach that Home Above,
Forever Lord with Thee.

"Seven Last Words"

Beautiful Cantata Will Be Presented Sunday Night In Warren

The beautiful Lenten cantata, "The Seven Last Words of Christ," will be sung Sunday at 7 o'clock at the Baptist Church, under the able direction of Chester O. Wyllie, to whom music lovers of this section are much indebted, for his excellent interpretation of music, especially that of the sacred type.

Mr. Wyllie has assembled a chorus of 33 voices. Mrs. Lydia Storer, and Harold Green of Rockland, and Edward Newcombe of Thomaston, will be unable to take part, but others from out of town will be Miss Nellie Tibbitts of Thomaston, Fred Haney of Camden, Raymond Greene, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Veazie, Mrs. Lillian Joyce, Miss Margaret Simmons, Mrs. Grace Strout of Rockland.

The music arranged to bring out the beauty of the season, and of mixed voices, will contain soprano solo by Miss Margaret Simmons of Rockland; tenor solos by Roger Teague, and baritone solos by Charles Wilson of Warren; baritone solo by Raymond Greene of Rockland; soprano solo by Mrs. Maurice Lermord of South Warren, obligato duet by Roger Teague and Mrs. Sidney Wyllie of Warren as well as a fine chorus background.

Accompanist will be Miss Verna Robinson. Mrs. Aubrey Bishop of Springvale, formerly of this town, will give the opening prayer and the scripture reading.

Due to the continuity, the offering will be taken before the opening of the program. The proceeds will be given to the fund for building an addition to the new school building for the housing of the first four grades. This Cantata is one of a series of events, planned for the swelling of this fund.

L. Stanley on "Jesus and the City." At 7 o'clock Mr. Stanley will conduct an evangelistic service. Church School will meet at 1:30.

British and American military authorities have 22,000 freight cars still in Belgium.

At St. Peter's

Full Program For Observance Of Holy Week At That Church

On Palm Sunday there will be the blessing and distribution of Palms followed by the Mass. A Short Retreat or Quiet Afternoon will be conducted from 4 until 8 p. m. There will be three meditations given on the Theological Virtues of Faith, Hope, and Charity. All adults of the parish are urged to make this Retreat. Friends are also welcome as they are at all other services.

The week day Masses will be a half hour earlier to accommodate those who must be at work (7 a. m.) The children of the parish are expected to be at Church every afternoon at 4 p. m. up until Good Friday.

Each evening up until Good Friday, "The Way of the Cross" will be conducted. This is a miniature pilgrimage with meditations on the Passion. On Maundy Thursday, the day commemorating the institution of the Holy Eucharist, a virginal of prayer will be offered by the parish continuing from the Mass until 6 a. m. Good Friday morning. The women and children will keep the day hours and the men the night hours. This Devotion has been kept at St. Peter's for many years.

On Good Friday there will be two Meditations of the Sacrifice of Mt. Calvary and the Liturgical services of the day. From 12 to 3 p. m. On Holy Saturday the First Vespers of Easter, the lighting of the Paschal Candle and Holy Baptism will take place at 4 p. m.

It is our hope that our people will spend at least one hour in Church each day of Holy Week.

In asking The Courier-Gazette to publish this account of the Liturgical life at St. Peter's it is our hope that it might be of interest to our fellow Christian Brethren of other persuasions and to assure them of our sincere effort for Christian Charity in our community.

Lobster Gets Around

Crustacean Which Aids Rockland's Fame Featured In National Geographic

Once more the Maine lobster has received top billing in a prominent national magazine. The April issue of the National Geographic Magazine devotes 20 pages of copy and 14 photographs to a comprehensive biography of the king of seafoods from the time it is hatched from the egg until it winds up as a mouth watering delicacy on the dinner table.

The article, written by John D. Lucas, and illustrated with photographs by John Fletcher, deals with the subject in the form of an interview during a trip with a Casco Bay lobster fisherman. The story unfolds as the trip progresses and by the time the last trap has been hauled the fisherman has given the writer a complete picture of the "love life" until it rests "Buddha-fashion" on a platter of or coming from the trolley.

Along the way, writer Lucas points out that as well as being a "good business man" the lobster fisherman is an independent operator and does not belong to or take orders from any syndicate or union. Lucas adds that he usually is a very substantial person in his community. As the finale of the article the writer describes an old fashioned Maine lobster bake which leaves no doubt in the reader's mind that Maine is the place to go this Summer.

Both the writer of the article and

WHAT ROCKLAND ESCAPED

Snow Yard Was On Point of Closing When General Seafoods Came Along

The famous boat yards of Lawley's at Neponset and Hereschoff's at Bristol, Conn., are about to go under the auctioneer's hammer; passing from existence as shipyards and repair yards for commercial and pleasure craft. The reason given is the inability of the yards to meet high wage demands of labor and the lack of work, both commercial and pleasure.

In Rockland, very much the same situation existed although it was not generally known outside Snow Shipyard at the time. It is now known that had not the sale of the yards been made to General Seafoods, Inc., the entire plant would have closed Dec. 31, 1945, not to reopen, but to be sold at auction or piecemeal.

The directors of the company had voted one year previously to close the yard due to the impossibility of making so large an establishment pay with the small amount of commercial and pleasure work then available in the area. The possibility of a sale to some concern which would operate in the yard to continue on in order that they might have a going concern to offer prospective buyers. The fact alone that Rockland has been free of labor trouble may have prompted General Seafoods to come into the area and make the purchase.

In buying, they assured steady employment to a large number of men, especially with the prospects of a large fleet of druggers operating from their proposed fish pier and processing plant on Railroad Wharf and the resultant repairs on the druggers and new construction to keep the fleet up.

Had Snows closed, there would have been no facilities for machine shop repairs or steel work for the local fishing fleet East of Boston.

To date, they have extended employees, sick benefits, vacations with pay group insurance and a retirement plan is expected within a week or 10 days.

It is now estimated that when the complete program of General Seafoods is in effect here that the annual payroll, both from persons employed ashore and those aboard the druggers, will possibly exceed $2,000,000 a year.

Considering the loss of their main industry in Neponset and Bristol, Rockland is more than fortunate to have a firm that carried the city from the war work over to peacetime activities with hardly a hitch.

A Special Session

Will Be Called By Gov. Hildreth To Act On Proposed Bond Issue

Strongly urging that the issue be kept out of politics, Gov. Hildreth informed Lloyd B. Morton of Farmington, chairman of the Republican State Committee, that he will call a special session of the Legislature "shortly after June 17," to act on a proposed bond issue to provide benefits for veterans of World War II.

At the same time he stated that if the State should appropriate $10,000,000, the maximum amount which he recommended for that purpose last February, it would increase the bonded indebtedness by over one-half and "would substantially increase our per capita interest cost, which is already among the highest in the Nation." The taxation to meet such a burden, he declared, "would fall heavily on the veterans themselves."

In his letter to Morton dealing with "the most pressing problem confronting Maine today," his obligations to its sons and daughters who served us so gallantly," Gov. Hildreth said: "I am writing you on the eve of the Republican Convention because I trust and hope my party will not attempt to cheapen the obligation which the State owes its veterans by attempting to sell it for votes. The obligation is one for all the people of the State. It is not for sale by any party or by any individual at any price."

The convention will be held at Bangor Thursday and Friday. "This question is no more a political issue than the winning of the war," wrote Hildreth. "To call a special session in the midst of a primary campaign would degrade the most precious sentiments of loyalty and obligation to veterans to competitive bidding for votes. On the other hand, the Legislature should meet this problem in time to put its solution before the people in September.

"Maine is now spending for benefits for veterans of World War I and II and their families at the rate of half a million dollars a year, with a program equalled by few states. Large as this amount is, additional benefits should and must be conferred on our veterans by the State."

"It seems to be that the logical time for the Legislature to consider this question is as soon as possible after the primary election and before the Fall campaign begins."

Much Tree Planting

One Hundred Thousand Will Be Apportioned In Waldo County

The arrival of Spring presents a big task for the district supervisors of the Waldo County Soil Conservation District when approximately 100,000 trees and shrubs will be planted by farmers co-operating in the District program in the county.

Over 50 farmers will be co-operating in the tree and shrub planting program and the 100 acres that is to be retired to trees is steep sloping land, land that is washing badly, rocky or idle land, and land where the best use is for woodland or wildlife.

According to the supervisors of the Soil Conservation District, the tree and shrub planting is a phase of the District's land use program for soil and water conservation and the retiring of steep and eroded land to trees leaves the more gently sloping land, where erosion progresses less rapidly, for cultivated crops. The trees and shrubs will be planted on farms planned for conservation work by Soil Conservationists Roy Gross and Lyle Davis of the Belfast and Unity Work Unit offices of the Soil Conservation Service.

The trees and shrubs that are to be planted include chiefly, white pine, spruce, white spruce and a variety of shrubs as highbush cranberry, bayberry, noneysuccine and the like for wildlife borders and hedges. The policy of the District Supervisors is to furnish tree trees and shrubs to farmers in specified quantities.

The bulk of the planting stock is being furnished to the Waldo County District Supervisors from Soil Conservation Service Nurseries and a large amount of white pine and red pine is being purchased from the State Nursery at Orono.

Farm Cleanup Week

Is Being Observed This Week—Suggestions To Follow

Plans for a nation-wide "Farm Cleanup Week" from April 8 to 14, to help step up 1946 livestock production and farm profits, are announced here by livestock health authorities.

Chief objective of the effort in this State will be a thorough cleanup of livestock quarters, barnyards, and lots, to eradicate parasites, germs, and disease hazards which could be a threat to livestock health. Cleanup suggestions, offered today by the American Foundation for Animal Health, include: "Clean and disinfect livestock quarters, particularly where young animals and poultry are to be born and housed."

"Remove old straw stacks, by spreading straw on fields. Old stacks harbor worms, parasites, and disease germs."

"Clean up barnyards and livestock lots. They are often heavily infested with parasites."

"Drain low spots in barn lots, where water stands, for these places are germ-breeding."

"Haul out all manure; manure piles are sources of parasite infestation."

"Pick up nails, glass, and other sharp objects which could be swallowed by livestock with fatal consequences."

"Move young animals to fresh clean ground as early as possible. As added health precautions, be sure pigs are vaccinated against erysipelas and cholera, have breeding stock checked for brucellosis, and watch for signs of disease so prompt corrective measures may be taken."

For A Fifth Term

Mrs. Smith Has No Primary Opposition and Deserves None

Margaret Chase Smith

Margaret Chase Smith, member of Congress from the Second District of Maine has announced that she will be a candidate for re-election in the Republican primaries in June. She is unopposed for the nomination for her fifth consecutive term.

In a brief statement of her candidacy, Mrs. Smith declared that "continuity of service is the most effective element of individual strength in a legislator." She assured the voters of the District that "if returned to Congress I shall aim to justify this renewal of your confidence."

Congressman Smith said that she was filing nomination papers "received from the seven counties" of the District.

A popular campaigner, Mrs. Smith has been returned to Congress three times by a vote of roughly three to one. She originally was sent to Congress in 1940, in a special election to fill the vacancy caused by the death of her husband, Rep. Clyde H. Smith. Before that time, Mrs. Smith had been a business executive of the Maine Telephone and Telegraph Company, a newspaper woman and secretary to her late husband. She was a member of the Republican State Committee from 1930 to 1936.

The Cost Of Living

Our Representative Would Have A Committee Investigate It

Rep. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine introduced in the House Wednesday a bill to create a special nine-member committee to investigate the cost of living, especially in food and clothing, caused by the war or economic policies. Democratic Representative Woodhouse, Conn., introduced a similar bill.

The investigation would have particular reference to any increases in the cost of food, shelter and clothing attributed to:

(1) War and postwar economic conditions; (2) government regulations and (3) trade practice and other factors which prevent adequate production and equitable distribution of consumer goods.

Lobster Gets Around

Crustacean Which Aids Rockland's Fame Featured In National Geographic

Once more the Maine lobster has received top billing in a prominent national magazine. The April issue of the National Geographic Magazine devotes 20 pages of copy and 11 photographs to a comprehensive biography of the king of seafoods from the time it is hatched from the egg until it winds up as a mouth watering delicacy on the dinner table.

The article, written by John D. Lucas, and illustrated with photographs by John Fletcher, deals with the subject in the form of an interview during a trip with a Casco Bay lobster fisherman. The story unfolds as the trip progresses and by the time the last trap has been hauled the fisherman has given the writer a complete picture of the shellfish all the way from its "love life" until it rests "Eul'ha-fash-on" on a platter of creaming from the broiler.

Along the way, writer Lucas points out that as well as being a "good business man" the lobster fisherman is an independent operator and does not belong to or take orders from any syndicate or union. Lucas adds that he usually is a very substantial person in his community. As the finale of the article the writer describes "arroyo" fashioned Maine lobster bake which leaves no doubt in the reader's mind that Maine is the place to go this summer.

Both the writer of the article and

WHAT ROCKLAND ESCAPED

Snow Yard Was On Point of Closing When General Seafoods Came Along

The famous boat yards of Lawley's at Neponset and Hereschoff's at Bristol, Conn., are about to go under the auctioneer's hammer, passing from existence as shipyards and repair yards for commercial and pleasure craft. The reason given is the inability of the yards to meet high wage demands of labor and the lack of work, both commercial and pleasure.

In Rockland, very much the same situation existed although it was not generally known outside Snow Shipyard at the time. It is now known that had not the sale of the yards been made to General Seafoods, Inc., the entire plant would have closed Dec. 31, 1945, not to reopen, but to be sold at auction or piecemeal.

The directors of the company had voted one year previously to close the yard due to the impossibility of making so large an establishment pay with the small amount of commercial and pleasure work then available in the area. The possibility of a sale to some concern which would operate it, prompted them to continue on in order that they might have a going concern to offer prospective buyers.

The fact alone that Rockland has been free of labor trouble may have prompted General Seafoods to come into the area and make the purchase.

In buying, they assured steady employment to a large number of men, especially with the prospects of a large fleet of druggers operating from their proposed fish pier and processing plant on Railroad Wharf and the resultant repairs on the druggers and new construction to keep the fleet up.

Had Snows closed, there would have been no facilities for machine shop repairs or steel work for the local fishing fleet East of Boston.

To date, they have extended employees, sick benefits, vacations with pay group insurance and a retirement plan is expected within a week or 10 days.

It is now estimated that when the complete program of General Seafoods is in effect here that the annual payroll, both from persons employed ashore and those aboard the druggers, will possibly exceed $2,000,000 a year.

Considering the loss of their main industry in Neponset and Bristol, Rockland is more than fortunate to have a firm that carried the city from the war work over to peacetime activities with hardly a hitch.

A Special Session

Will Be Called By Gov. Hildreth To Act On Proposed Bond Issue

Strongly urging that the issue be kept out of politics, Gov. Hildreth informed Lloyd B. Morton of Farmington, chairman of the Republican State Committee, that he will call a special session of the Legislature "shortly after June 17," to act on a proposed bond issue to provide benefits for veterans of World War II.

At the same time he stated that if the State should appropriate $10,000,000, the maximum amount which he recommended for that purpose last February, it would increase the bonded indebtedness by over one-half and "would substantially increase our per capita interest cost, which is already among the highest in the Nation."

In his letter to Morton dealing with "the most pressing problem confronting Maine today, its obligations to its sons and daughters who served us so gallantly," Gov. Hildreth said: "I am writing you on the eve of the Republican Convention because I trust and hope my party will not attempt to cheapen the obligation which the State owes its veterans by attempting to sell it for votes. The obligation is one for all the people of the State. It is not for sale by any party, or by any individual at any price."

The convention will be held at Bangor Thursday and Friday. "This question is no more a political issue than the winning of the war," wrote Hildreth. To call a special session in the midst of a primary campaign would degrade the most precious sentiments of loyalty and obligation to veterans to competitive bidding for votes. On the other hand, the Legislature should meet this problem in time to put its solution before the people in September.

Maine is now spending for benefits for veterans of World War I and II and their families at the rate of half a million dollars a year, with a program equalled by few states. Large as this amount is, additional benefits should and must be conferred on our veterans by the State.

"It seems to be that the logical time for the Legislature to consider this question is as soon as possible after the primary election and before the Fall campaign begins."

MAINE IN WASHINGTON

(From the Office of Owen Brewster, U. S. S.)

The past week might well have been termed Maine sardine week in Washington. Leading representatives of the industry came to town to confer with the Maine Delegation, price officials in OPA and the heads of the War Food Administration.

UNRRA has expressed a desire to use a large number of Maine sardines for relief purposes in Europe. Strangely enough while this arrangement is being worked out for foreign packers especially from Portugal and France are planning to send huge shipments of extra fancy sardines to the United States markets. During the war years the Army took huge quantities of Maine sardines at prices below cost. The packers were willing and anxious to do everything possible to help the war effort expecting to enter the open market following the war. Now the War Food Administration has asked the Maine sardine packers to contract for the deliveries for 45% of the entire pack to UNRRA at War Department prices. In order to furnish this percentage of the pack the industry feels that an increase in price must be had from OPA.

While the packers were in Washington arrangements were made whereby OPA will authorize and appoint a regional advisory committee for the American sardine industry. The region will comprise the State of Maine and will represent all three packing districts, the Portland area, the Rockland-Belfast area and the Hancock-Washington counties area. There will be six members on this advisory committee representing the large packers, the medium packers and the small packers. It will include a representative from the independent packers while five members will come from the state association.

Potato Shipments

Aroostook farmers are loud in their praises of the services rendered the potato industry with respect to the supply of railroad cars and the supply of fertilizers for the coming season. Members of the Maine delegation took an active interest in these matters which to potato growers are of great importance to the potato shippers and the potato planters.

Seed potatoes have practically all been shipped and table stock is in good demand. Fertilizers, especially potash, has been critical owing to severe shortages and the loss of foreign importation. Nevertheless, the Maine delegation has been influential in securing larger allocations than would otherwise have prevailed. The industry plans to increase its acreage by about a thousand acres. The plant this year will total 207,000 acres.

State Of Maine Society

At the annual meeting of the State of Maine Society in Washington, Raymond Payson of Camden was chosen president. He is a World War II veteran entering the service in 1940 and becoming a Chief Warrant Officer serving largely in the Pacific. He is now chief loan officer with the Veterans Bureau. Other officers elected include Miss Blanche Bernier, Skowhegan; first vice president; Miss Elena Shute, Belfast, second vice president; Haven Sawyer, Bangor, third vice president; Miss Dorothy Biglow, Easton, recording secretary; Robert C. Hall, Jr., Jackson, treasurer; Mrs. Maria Collett, Waterville, corresponding secretary. The retiring president, Roy C. Haines of Ellsworth was presented with a beautiful pen and pencil set in recognition of the splendid services rendered during the past year.

Some Feature Events

The high spots of the Maine Society during the past year include the Maine-Idaho Potato Contest which enjoyed a coast to coast radio hook-up broadcast and the Maine Lobster dinner for which over 2100 apples for the 403 tickets which were also available. There was also the annual Maine Picture Show by Everett Groaton of the Maine Development Commission and the annual concert.

In completing his term of office Mr. Haines made the recommendation that the society present a musical concert each year in honor of Lillian Nordica. Maine is rich in its musical history and includes many world known artists in addition to Madam Nordica. The list: Emma Eames, Annie Louise Carey, John Knowles Paine, William R. Chapin, Arthur H. Robinson, Club in New York and the Maine Music Festival, Walter Damosch, Howard Hanson, the Kneisels with the famous string quartet of Franz Kneisel and the now famous ladies string quartet under the direction of Maria Kneisel, Emilio Gorgonzola and Eubelbert Nevin. Few people have knowledge that Eubelbert Nevin now lies buried in the cemetery at Blue Hill.

Tuna Fishing Off Maine Coast

Another recommendation to be carried out during the coming Summer is the tuna fishing expedition to be held off Bar Harbor during the early Summer. Maine has developed a fairly successful tuna fishing off Portland. New Brunswick enjoys an excellent fishing reputation especially in and around Liverpool. Members of the Maine Society believe that in the neighborhood of Mt. Desert Rock tuna fish must pass to and from their migration to the north Atlantic.

The Maine Development Commission has taken up the suggestion with enthusiasm and will have charge of arrangements for the expedition. The Bar Harbor Chamber of Commerce will act as host on the occasion and the tuna fishing expert will be Roy C. Haines of Washington who is well known as a successful fisherman in Florida and New Brunswick. When not fishing for Tuna Mr. Haines is proprietor of a

Soap-Making Tree in Middle America

—Muriel Ries for Middle America Information Bureau

PROF. ALFRED F. BUTLER, Chief of the Pan American School of Agriculture's Department of Agronomy, checks on development of an African Palm at the school's experimental plantation.

It's a long way from this young African palm to the bar of soap in a North American bathroom, but more and more soap is being "grown" these days. Oil pressed from palm seeds or kernels goes into about thirty-five percent of all soap manufactured.

The African Palm being inspected by Prof. Butler is one of the twelve varieties grown by the student farmers of the Pan American School of Agriculture in Honduras. This school was established in 1941 by the United Fruit Company for the purpose of giving Middle American students a free, modern education in scientific farming. Students are drawn from all ten Middle American republics: Mexico, Guatemala, El Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua, Costa Rica, Panama, Haiti, Cuba and the Dominican Republic.

One of the top aims of this unusual school is to develop new crops which independent citizen farmers can produce profitably. Oil bearing palms are fruits of this research. The African Palm is only one of twenty-five species of palm which experimentation has proved can be grown commercially in Middle America. Previously palm oils were grown only along the African coast, in the South Pacific, and in Asia and had to be carried half way around the world to the United States. Although largely a war-time innovation, the palm oil industry of Middle America is now expanding to a permanent occupation which will give our neighboring republics a more rounded economic life.

Palm oils, in addition to making soap, are used extensively for oleo margarine, cosmetics, candles, dental creams, polishes, "tin" cans, glycerines and a host of other products for U. S. industry.

More Old Names

A Jay See Digs Out Another Ancient Business Directory

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

As you are publishing lists of business firms of Rockland's past history I am sending some as found in "Maine Business Directory" published in 1878. Probably all of the classifications of Rockland firms listed in this book would consume too much space in your columns, so I will make this more general, than complete.

Under the Rockland list of retail grocers in this book are exactly 52 beginning alphabetically with Joseph Abbott and ending with Richard H. Wilson, whose store was at 357 Main street never heard of him before.

Many familiar names however are in this list. The familiar name "H. H. Orie & Co." was at that time listed in the column of retail grocers. Also R. Fred Orie, who kept store almost across the road from the other Orie store. There was a "Barber & Robinson" who kept store at 35 Union street, who kept the older citizens of Rockland most of the remainder of the list have at least a half familiar sound.

The name A. M. Austin heads the list of Rockland dentists of whom there are listed. Second name R. B. Baynes, who I remember, as an extremely old, sickly appearing man. He lived upstairs in the building at the corner of Main and Limerock streets which many years ago was destroyed by fire. The Perry Market now occupies this site.

Then there was Dr. Evans whose business card I found in the directory—Charles Henry Evans, 264 Main St., near Thorndike Hotel.

It is quite entertaining for one who is as interested in local history as I to read these old lists, recalling a little more, perhaps, than 50 percent of them and even recalling personal experience with some in my case, none of serious consequence, some however even humorous.

In some cases the name remains, but the business may not be even remotely connected with the old. To me the old days are worth remembering, even if the remembrance may be a trifle hazy.

A Jay See.

The program of "Socialism" is based he says on the following principle: "Because monopoly power has become a destructive power in all of our social, political and industrial life, it has become necessary to unite all other classes, including labor, small manufacturers, merchants, professionals and farmers in order to convert private monopoly property into public property owned in common by all of the people."

Snohomish and Legare Put To Emergency Service Out of Rockland

Following close on the heels of the Coast Guard's drastic cut in rescue ships in this area and all along the New England coast last week, three emergency calls were received in a 24 period.

Last Saturday morning, the Snohomish answered a call by the dragger, Mary A. of Gloucester. Capt. Roland Whiffen, broken down at a position 2 1/2 miles off Owls Head. The craft had turned out connecting rod bearings and the engine, Noel Leville, 41, of Gloucester had badly burned and crushed his hand while attempting to make repairs. The cutter carried a doctor and pharmacist mate who gave treatment and took the man to Knox Hospital.

The same afternoon, the Snohomish, made a second emergency run, this time to North Haven, to bring Miss Jennie Beverage to Knox Hospital for treatment for a broken ankle which she had sustained in a fall in the back yard of her home. Sunday afternoon, the same cutter returned her to the island.

Sunday morning, the Boston dragger, Texas, radioed that she had lost her propeller on the banks and in a position 41.55 North and 66.05 West, approximately 160 miles East by South from Matinicus Rock. The Legare departed immediately on the mission, reaching her during the night Sunday and taking tow for Boston. Master of the Texas, is Capt. Stephen O'Reilly of Boston who has a crew of 15. The vessel is owned by the North Atlantic Fishing Company of Boston and is 96 feet in length and diesel powered. The captain reported 20,000 pounds of mixed groundfish aboard which had to reach port immediately if they were to arrive in saleable condition.

A Veteran's Query

Why Should Names of Our Heroes Be Removed From Sight?

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

Is it possible that the fair city of Rockland, can be first in Maine and maybe the whole U.S.A. to forget the men of the Armed Forces who were heroes of yesterday.

Yes, good old Rockland has removed the names of all its heroes from Main street, and now wants them placed in a building, where only 10 percent of the people will see them.

We have, in my guess three much better places for them—the Public Library lawn, the lawn at the Public Landing and at the head of Schofield-White Park. Let's all go together and what better day than Army Day for replacing those names so dear to so many hearts.

I am one of many who faced the enemy on a foreign land, should I not have something to say of what becomes of our proud honor roll? We who are living have not only to speak for ourselves, but for those who gave their lives that freedom should be ours.

"But one thing, fellows we must remember, God will see our names no matter where they are placed.

Come on Rockland, don't hide your heroes; show them to the world.

INTIMATE VIEWS OF VINALHAVEN

History, Home Life and Personal Recollections

By SIDNEY L. WINSLOW

It was then, and it is today, a mystery to all our townspeople where Mr. Herrmann got all the money that he was spending so lavishly.

"It was generally understood that he had made a fortune in his business, which was said to be marine insurance, yet there were many who believed it to be money furnished by the German government for propagandic purposes.

So all during the war Mr. Herrmann and his affairs was one of the outstanding local topics in the home and about town. Many were inclined to be bitter and insist that he be driven from town and placed in a detention camp.

All sorts of reports were abroad; there were whisperings of soundproof rooms being constructed in the houses on the estate, of secret underground passages leading to the shore; of mysterious craft coming to anchor near the Shore House after nightfall had spread over Roberts Harbor; of signal lights being flashed at midnight from the hill near the upper house and answering flashes from a ship or ships far out at sea.

That all these reports were investigated there seems but little doubt yet so far as I know there was no truth in any of them, nor have I ever heard that they found the slightest scratch against him, excepting that he was an alien from an enemy country.

Of course, during the war, there was a considerable amount of propaganda abroad; we were warned to beware of all Germans; warned of their craft and elaborate spy system. Every German, whether born in this country or the old was looked upon as a potential spy. Therefore even Mr. Herrmann's acts of kindness were looked upon with suspicion and distrust, although I never heard of anybody turning down any of these favors if it happened to come their way.

If he was not what he pretended to be, if he was playing a game, that chapter of his career must be recorded by somebody far better informed in that respect than I.

Spy, German agent, propagandist he may have been, but my remembrance of him, is of a man big in body, mind and heart, whom I never heard utter an unkind word or mistreat anybody or anything.

Did he hear of anybody in need, he was the first to lend them assistance, although he was often implored upon by the unscrupulous who took advantage of his generosity.

All the eggs, products of his big henery, excepting those consumed in his own household, were crated and sent to friends in New York. He received no pay for them and even paid the cost of transportation. Often there would be a distribution of several dozen eggs to each of the workmen on his estate.

If a cow was butchered on his place the greater part of the meat was given to the town's needy. It was the same with vegetables and produce, nearly all of it given away; none was sold.

At Christmas time he donated $50, a voluntary gift, to the selectmen for the purchase of gifts for the inmates of the town farm, and each of the workmen on the Herrmann estate would receive something like the following: Ten pounds of coffee, 10 pounds of beef or veal, 10 pounds of candy, and one box of cigars.

The constant criticism directed at the man by some of the townsfolk caused him a great amount of worry. There was at one time rampant rumor of a plot to set fire to the buildings on the Herrmann estate. Now it is to be very much doubted if there was any man or group of men in this town who seriously planned to do any such thing, nevertheless the report reached Mr. Herrmann's ears, causing him a great deal of uneasiness and it was at this juncture that he petitioned for governmental protection.

He asked if it were possible to have a small contingent of soldiers or marines stationed on his estate to see that he was not molested and at the same time put the minds of the citizens at rest in regards to his activities and deportment, he to pay all expense incurred.

He was informed that his request could not be granted, so far as the soldiers were concerned, but he was guaranteed all the protection accorded to any law abiding citizen so long as he conducted himself in a like manner.

No attempt was ever made to molest him in any way although the reports of those mysterious signal lights flashing from the Herrmann Place to ships in the Eastern Penobscot Bay continued to the end of the war. Those mysterious flashes are probably to be classed with the airships that flew so silently over the village during the war or, who knows but that it was the old circus ship "Royal Tar" having one of her "cuttin' up" spells!

It is quite evident that Mr. Herrmann was not under suspicion for he was permitted to make frequent trips to New York and return although he was compelled to ask permission to do so.

The "Herrmann Place" saw its best days during the Fall of 1916 and up to 1921; after that it lost much of its importance, from an industrial standpoint, as the number of men employed in the early part of 1921 had dwindled down to a handful.

It is true that it still required quite a crew of men to do the necessary work on the place but not nearly as many as were employed during the war years when the building work was in progress, although Mr. Herrmann is quoted as saying he planned to make some important changes in the place and to construct several new buildings.

The war was over and many who had been Mr. Herrmann's bitterest foes now became eager to gain his friendship. Mr. Herrmann held no grudges, or if he did he kept it to himself and many of these former critics became numbered among his closest friends.

But, one day we received word that Mr. Herrmann had died quite suddenly at the home of one of his New York friends—and the story that the Herrmann Place was about to close.

It has been whispered that there was a suspicion of foul play in connection with his death; that he had been placed "on the spot" by agents of the German government because of misuse of propagandic funds, but all these reports, so far as I know were merely whisperings.

Mr. Herrmann's body was cremated. The ashes were sent to Vinalhaven and strewn near Diamond Rock in East Penobscot Bay whose waters border the shore of his former estate. This was done in compliance with a wish he had often expressed some years prior to his death.

The property remained inactive for several years after Mr. Herrmann's death and was later purchased by Dr. Paul J. Flagg, the present owner. Because of its location it will always be one of our town's beauty spots, but there are those among us who, remembering the old days, will yet feel a pang of regret as we view it in actuality or retrospect, for always will linger the memory of a man "big in body, mind and heart" whom never again shall we see strolling about the place; the man whom we had all learned to love and respect and who, in spite of all that was said against him, we still like to feel was too much of a man to be anything other than that which he professed to be.

Heap Big Doings

Ganders Win Two, Grimes Wins Five and Skippers Win Raspberry

For three weeks past there have been missing from these columns the goings on between the Skippers and the Ganders, and now that your correspondent has caught up with some of his sleep, his doctor's bills and enough energy and ambition, to do the job, he will endeavor to chronicle some of the cavortings and idiosyncrasies of this conglomeration of ball tossers.

It was way back March 25 when the Skippers won their last bowling match 1328 to 1279 and by that time they had arrived to the conclusion that they were never going to lose another one. But a small dark cloud had appeared on the horizon, no larger than Vic Shields' good right arm, for he had joined up with the Ganders in Doc Mill's place, the good Doc being put off the team by his old enemy neuritis.

While the Ganders did not win on the first appearance of Shields in their line-up, it could be seen that he was gradually getting into form and in the next two games he was a tower of strength both at the table and on the alleys.

April 1 the Ganders foiled the Skippers in good shape by giving them a good trimming 1339 to 1286, and although Capt. Grimes' pocket-book was pretty flat after this match his spirits were soaring, for he thought he could see the end of gang rule (meaning that gang of Skippers). Sanborn, Shields and the old Goose carried the ball for the Ganders in this match, while the Skippers had a complete relapse, even Poole falling off to what (for him) was a low total.

It was last Monday night however that Ganders came into full flower, for on this date it walked off with practically every thing but Frankie Adams' pants. At 6 p. m., Capt. Grimes gave the word and the two teams sat down to one of "Beulah's Best" lobster chowders at the home of Skipper Peterson, with Albert Carver the guest of the evening.

Some concern was expressed at the table as to just what effect good lobster chowder had on a guy's bowling, and whether or not it was best to eat till the buttons popped, or whether a better score could be obtained by going light. This question never has been decided, and this match did not help the matter any for some who indulged to the limit did well and some who laid off were quite rotten, thank you, and vice versa.

The general effect however was one of great well being and uplift, for the Ganders totaled 1363 and the Skippers were only 28 behind with a 1335. Poole led the pack with a 308 and the Goose was far behind him with 308, while "old man Sanborn" managed to hobble up on the stand and get a nice 297.

And in passing it may be noted that what Link beat Pete was just about what the Ganders won by, all the others running neck and neck.

The foxy Captain Grimes was plenty smart on this occasion, for he bunched and scattered bets all over the place and when the smoke had cleared away Der Cap had enough, (along with what he had collected from the long suffering bowlers) to spend a month's vacation in Florida.

The boys are now expecting a little feed of caviare and champagne the next time Der Cap puts anything on the table, lobster and chicken and turkey having lost their appeal to a man of his means.

There is no certainty just how much longer the matches will continue, but it is quite certain they will continue as long as the Ganders keep up their winning streak, for Cap'n Grimes and his advisers would like to cut down some of that Skipper lead before the boys begin to tune in the baseball games. Skipper Pete has suggested that they bowl enough times more to round out a half year of contests or 26 weeks. Just a nice term of school.

The score, Skippers—Young 240, Adams 248, Peterson 270, Anderson 265, Poole 312. Total, 1335.

Ganders—MacDonald 242, Grimes 253, Sanborn 297, Shields 263, The Goose 308. Total, 1363.

School notes: Miss Ruth Arrington has resigned as teacher of the upper grades, to accept a position in Freeport. Mr. Ingraham of Winthrop will fill the vacancy. Pupils and teachers express appreciation to all who have assisted in making the school lunch program a success this year. Grace Gushee and Edward Mercer are on the "A" honor roll at High School.

The steel pipe installed in Washington's Pentagon building would stretch from Chicago to Indianapolis—about 200 miles.

Camp Stoneham, Calif., March 28.

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:— It has been a long time since I wrote to you all. Until very recently I have been one of the busiest WACs in existence.

As you know this is a Port of Embarkation and a Redistribution center. April will see one of the very busiest months as they will process new troops for overseas duty. I have been made a ward master on a septic surgical ward, and was made a TS March 15, so you see I am very busy. I re-enlisted until Sept. 30, 1946.

I shall settle out here on the West Coast. I like it very much. I have never seen any ice or snow all Winter and the flowers have bloomed all the year around. At Christmas time I spent three days at Hayward, Calif., about 40 miles from Camp. The roses and lilacs were in bloom and they made me think of Maine in early June. The mountains which surround the camp have been beautiful all Winter so velvety and green.

I'm coming home in May on furlough and hope to see you all then.

Sgt. Ivy B. Carlson.

There can be a Great Future...

There can be a GREAT FUTURE ahead for the food industry, for all industry, and for the American people.

Every material requirement for sound living is at hand. We are rich in the basic resources of productive land, energetic people, and a capacity to create. This combination is the seedbed of better living for us, and for the world—if we will have it so.

Because we live off what we produce and exchange, utilization of these resources through economical and increasingly efficient production and distribution is the only way we know to contribute to better living for all.

This country is a gigantic enterprise with 140 million partners. Only as partners, working smoothly together, can we continuously produce what we want, and raise our levels of living to new heights.

There is no lasting means of getting more from producing less. Competition we want and must have; conflict hurts us all by crippling both production and the incentive which fires men to new achievements.

As a people, it is our responsibility to produce what we need and want.

As management of General Foods, it is our responsibility to provide suitable compensation to our employees and to the owners of the business, and to satisfy our customers with high quality at fair prices.

We believe in a high standard of living for every man, woman, and child in whom good citizenship resides. We believe in good jobs and stability of employment.

We believe it is the responsibility of business management to build opportunity for the man who wants to work. We believe in basic human values, and we are endeavoring to demonstrate these beliefs by the manner in which we administer the affairs of this company.

We further believe that we, as management, can best serve the common interest of workers, owners, and customers of General Foods through continuing to improve production and distribution of goods and services.

We believe that each of these 3 groups is vital to the founding and growth of productive enterprise, and thus vital to all people. Rewards of production must be divided equitably among these groups—not monopolized by any one of them.

We believe in the creation of human satisfactions as well as the production of things. We believe that General Foods cannot, and does not, stand alone in its effort to serve, and therefore we align ourselves with the great majority of men and women who are willing to work for a better future.

With courage, imagination, and productive work we can help sustain the American promise and give nurture to the human urge for better living. The goals are jobs, freedom, and the greater dignity of the individual.
